Here is the Recipe From Our CEO Turkey, Spinach & Cheese Meatballs

In just 20 minutes, you can whip up these juicy Turkey, Spinach & Cheese Meatballs! Packed with flavor, protein, and melty cheese — they're perfect for a quick weeknight dinner. Serve with your favorite sauce or a side of veggies!

Ingredients

- | | |
|--|---|
| - 1 tablespoon extra virgin olive oil | - ½ cup grated Parmigiano Reggiano, plus more for serving |
| - 1 large egg | - ½ cup Italian seasoned bread crumbs |
| - 3 ounces baby spinach, chopped (3½ cups whole; 1½ cups chopped) | - 1 (24 oz) jar marinara sauce, homemade or good quality store-bought |
| - 3 scallions, white and green parts, finely sliced | |
| - 3 garlic cloves, minced | |
| - 1.25 pounds 93/7 ground turkey (I use Shady Brook Farms) | |
| - 1.25 pounds Italian turkey sausage, removed from the casings (I use Shady Brook Farms) | |
| - 1 cup shredded mozzarella (preferably whole milk but low-fat will work) | |

Instructions

1. Preheat the broiler and set an oven rack on the second-highest rack. Line a baking sheet with heavy duty aluminum foil and grease with the olive oil.
2. In a bowl large enough to hold all of the ingredients, beat the egg. Add the chopped spinach, scallions, and garlic and stir until evenly combined. Add the ground turkey, turkey sausage, mozzarella, Parmigiano-Reggiano and bread crumbs. Using your hands, mix until evenly combined. Shape the mixture into 1½ inch balls and place on the prepared baking sheet.
3. Broil the meatballs until golden brown on top, about 10 minutes.
4. Meanwhile, heat the tomato sauce in a large pan on the stovetop. Add the broiled meatballs and simmer over low heat for 5 to 10 minutes, or until the meatballs are fully cooked.
5. Freezer-Friendly Instructions: These can be frozen in their sauce for up to 3 months. When ready to serve, reheat the meatballs in their sauce on the stovetop over medium heat until hot in the center.

What to Know About This Year's Flu Season

The influenza (flu) season in the United States lasts from October through May, with peak flu activity between December and March.

The U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) estimates that 47 million to 82 million flu illnesses occurred during the 2024-25 season. Data suggested that flu activity was at its highest level in more than 15 years.

Flu season in the Southern Hemisphere often indicates what's to come in the United States. Data revealed higher hospitalizations during the 2025 flu season in the Southern Hemisphere. With the potential for this year's flu season to be severe in the United States, vaccination remains the most effective way to prevent the flu, especially severe disease and hospitalization.

How to Stay Healthy

The flu can cause serious complications for people of any age, but children and older adults are especially vulnerable. To help keep your household healthy this flu season, consider these tips:

- Get vaccinated. The CDC recommends that nearly everyone aged 6 months and older get a flu shot every year.
- Avoid close contact with people who are sick and stay away from others when you feel unwell. Flu, cold and COVID-19 symptoms are similar, so doctors say it's best to get tested to determine what you have.
- Wash your hands often using soap and warm water. If those are unavailable, use an alcohol-based hand sanitizer.
- Cover your mouth and nose when coughing or sneezing.
- Get seven to nine hours of quality sleep each night to boost your immune system.
- Exercise regularly to strengthen your body and make it more resilient against infections.
- Stay hydrated and eat a balanced diet.

Experts recommend getting vaccinated against the flu by the end of October, so don't delay getting your shot. Contact your doctor today to learn more.

UV Index and Sun Safety

Spending time outdoors can be great for your health and well-being, but protecting your skin from the sun's harmful ultraviolet (UV) rays is important. One of the most effective ways to do this is by understanding and using the UV index, a daily forecast that measures the strength of the sun's UV radiation.

The UV index is reported on a scale from 0 to 11+. The higher the value, the greater the potential for harm from unprotected sun exposure.

Children, older adults, and people with fair skin or certain medical conditions may be especially vulnerable to high UV levels. Here's how to use the UV index proactively:

- Check the index in the morning. Many weather apps and websites display the UV index alongside the daily forecast.

Combating the "September Scaries"

As summer fades, individuals may experience a case of the "September Scaries," emotional and psychological stress that occurs with the transition from summer to fall. This phenomenon can happen as kids return to school, work intensifies, the days get shorter and the holiday season looms.

This seasonal transition disrupts routines and can trigger a sense of loss of freedom, sunshine and overall spontaneity. The return to rigid schedules and looming responsibilities may heighten stress, especially for those juggling work, family and other personal responsibilities. Consider these tips for managing stress during the seasonal transition:

- Write down your worries. First, it's important to understand what's making you feel worried. Then, you can evaluate if it's rational or not.

- Adjust your schedule when possible. If the UV index is high (6 or above), plan outdoor activities for early morning or late afternoon, when the sun's rays are less intense.
- Take extra precautions when the index spikes. On days with a very high or extreme rating, minimize direct exposure and prepare accordingly with strong sun protection.
- Watch for environmental amplifiers. Snow, sand, water and even pavement can reflect UV rays and increase your exposure.

Checking the UV index as part of your daily routine can help you reduce your risk of sunburn, premature aging and skin cancer while still enjoying time outdoors. Contact your doctor for more information.

- Establish routines. A routine can help you feel more in control and get you back on track for a solid season. Try to have some fun on the weekends, like making plans with friends, so you have something to look forward to.
- Practice self-care. This transition is also a good time to reinforce healthy routines like sleep hygiene, nutrition and movement. This practice can help you feel more physically and mentally prepared to take on challenges.
- Embrace seasonal changes. Enjoy fall activities, such as picking pumpkins and apples, hiking outdoors, baking with seasonal goods and watching the leaves change.

If you have any concerns about your well-being, reach out to a mental health professional.

The Importance of Investing in Your 401(K)

Bobby Kussell

CFO Insider:
Shifting Gears
on Growth And Development

401(k) Plan

Doral Automotive Group offers all employees the opportunity to invest in a 401(k) plan that includes a company match. A 401(k) is one of the most powerful tools available for building long-term financial security. This retirement savings plan allows you to invest a portion of your paycheck before taxes are taken out, enabling your money to grow tax-deferred until retirement.

Here's why investing in your 401(k) is so important:

1. Tax Advantages

Contributions to a traditional 401(k) reduce your taxable income, lowering your current tax bill. Over time, the compounded growth of investments within the account occurs without being taxed yearly, which can significantly boost your retirement savings.

2. DAG Matching

DAG offers a match that is equal to a percentage of what you contribute. This is essentially free money that increases your retirement fund without any additional cost to you. Failing to contribute enough to get the full match is leaving money on the table.

3. Long-Term Growth Potential

Because 401(k) funds are invested in the market—often in a mix of stocks, bonds, and mutual funds—they have the potential to grow substantially over the decades, especially when left untouched to benefit from compound interest.

4. Financial Security in Retirement

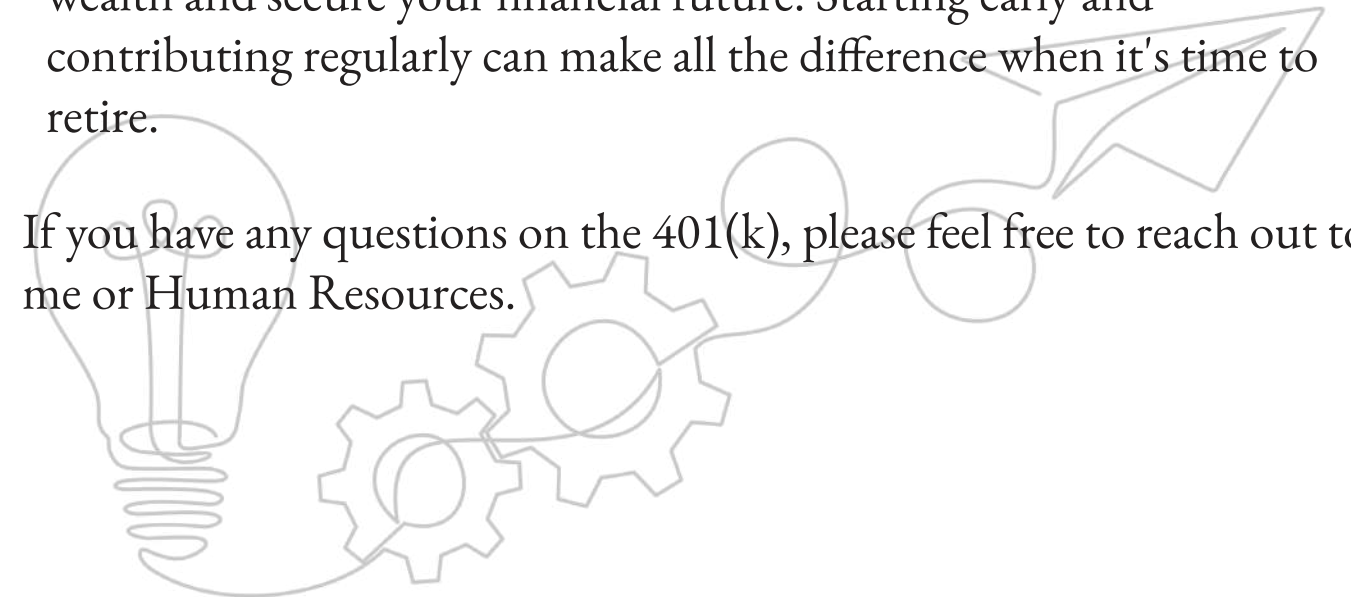

A well-funded 401(k) can provide the income you need to maintain your lifestyle in retirement.

5. Automatic Saving Makes It Easy

Contributions are automatically deducted from your paycheck, making saving consistent and effortless. Over time, these regular contributions add up significantly.

In short, investing in your 401(k) is a smart, disciplined way to build wealth and secure your financial future. Starting early and contributing regularly can make all the difference when it's time to retire.

If you have any questions on the 401(k), please feel free to reach out to me or Human Resources.

HOW HACKERS TRICK YOU

REAL PHISHING SCAMS SEEN AT DEALERSHIPS

Every day, dealerships like yours receive dozens of emails from vendors, manufacturers, banks, and customers. Unfortunately, not all of them are real.

This month, we're focusing on a growing threat: phishing attacks—fake emails that trick you into clicking bad links, entering passwords, or downloading malicious attachments.

Here's what you need to know to protect yourself and your team.

WHAT TO WATCH OUT FOR

A message saying your DMS password is about to expire.

- A fake invoice from 'accounting' asking you to click and review.
- An email that looks like your GM, but with a weird reply address.
- A text or email link saying 'your Microsoft account was suspended.'

An email was sent to a dealership employee that appeared to come from their OEM representative. It requested that they log into the dealer portal to view an "updated incentive bulletin." The link led to a lookalike login page, designed to harvest credentials.

In similar cases, attackers use this trick to gain access to real accounts and send out further phishing messages—sometimes within minutes. These emails often look convincing and use real names, logos, and urgency to bypass a user's judgment.

EXAMPLE: PHISHING AT A DEALERSHIP

SPOT THE PHISH: WOULD YOU CLICK THIS?

It looks legit—but it's a trap. Here's how to tell:

- Hover links before clicking
- Never trust urgency + login request combo
- Check sender domain (not just the name)

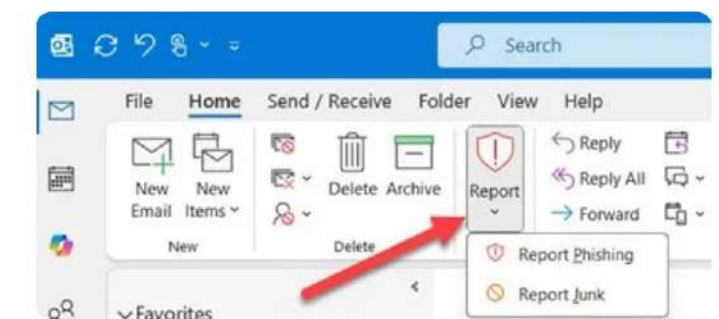

TOOL OF THE MONTH: REPORT IT IN OUTLOOK

Not sure if it's a scam? Don't delete—report it!

In Outlook:

- Web: Click 3 dots > Report > Phishing
- Desktop: Right-click message > Report > Phishing

This helps protect everyone at the dealership!

WHAT TO DO IF YOU CLICKED A SCAM LINK

"Oops—I Clicked It! Now What?"

- 📶 Disconnect from Wi-Fi (if possible)
- 🚫 Don't enter anything else
- 📞 Call IT immediately
- 🔒 Request Password change (especially for email/DMS)
- 😊 Stay calm—we've got your back

CYBERSECURITY STARTS WITH AWARENESS

Phishing attacks are getting more realistic, but so are the tools and training to stop them. When you take a moment to pause, inspect, and report, you're not just protecting yourself—you're protecting the entire dealership.

If you ever feel unsure about an email, don't click—call BRISKCO. We're here to help.
